Living Now and Supporting Our Seniors!

As your first fall semester as freshman draws to a close, the last fall semester for our senior’s is also ending. I guarantee your time here at WCU will be one that will be full of memories and fun; but the only drawback to this is that it will feel like it has flown by. Today you’re happy to be finishing this semester but once that graduation date becomes closer and closer, you’ll realize that this portion of your life is nearly over. Who wouldn’t want to be young and a college student for the rest of their lives? I know I would! But there comes that time when we all have to grow up and move on to the next great thing! Whether it’s becoming a powerful executive in the business world, saving other people’s lives as a doctor, or if it’s something as little as finding the love of your life and marrying them; whatever it may be, I hope once it occurs it brings you happiness! For now though, you have that time left, but my challenge for all of you for the rest of this year is for you to show our senior how much appreciate them for paving the path. For without them, WCU wouldn’t be where it is today.

So go out and support our entire senior class in their last few months as undergraduate students. Cheer for them at our sporting events and learn as much as you can from them in and out of the classroom!

My Best,

Scott Lundgren
