ADDITIONAL INFORMATION!

The English Studies Pedagogy concentration is nearly always used as a coordinating major for the B.S.Ed. in English. If you use it this way, the Professional Education Sequence of the B.S.Ed. requirements will constitute your minor. MFL requirements are also reduced for ESP majors whose coordinating major is the B.S.Ed. in Secondary and Special Subject Teaching—English. This allows candidates to graduate with both a B.S.Ed. and a B.A. and thus expand their career options.

If you declare the B.A. in English Studies Pedagogy as a stand-alone major, you are required to declare a minor or approved program and to fulfill the full MFL requirements for the B.A.

If you begin with the coordinating majors but then switch to the B.A. alone (a choice for candidates who decide they do not wish to teach or complete their internship), you will be required to declare a minor or approved program. An approved program can often be assembled from your professional education sequence courses—discuss this with your advisor. In cases of extreme need, one or both of the language requirements may also be waived, but this is very rare.

If you declare the coordinating majors, your hours should total at least 114; if you declare the B.A. alone, your hours should total around 94 (or 100 if you take the additional MFL coursework.) However, total hours depend strongly upon electives and the extent to which you "double dip" with liberal studies requirements. To graduate, every student must complete at least 120 total credit hours. Remember to keep counting your hours and to take enough courses to be sure they will eventually come out to 120 or more. Do not rely on your advisor to remind you of this: take responsibility for it yourself.
