A CALL FOR IDEAS FOR WESTERN CAROLINA’S NEXT 10-YEAR QUALITY ENHANCEMENT PLAN

WHAT?
The development of a quality enhancement plan (QEP) is the first step toward reaffirmation of WCU’s accreditation through the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges. Input is required from across campus to identify ideas for a focused QEP topic that will have meaningful impact on student learning experiences at WCU over the next decade.

WHO?
We need ideas from everyone—students, faculty, staff, even community members. The best idea can come from anywhere, and the entire campus community will help decide the best path for our QEP.

WHY?
This is your greatest opportunity to have lasting impact on Western Carolina University’s campus and culture. The QEP will become the center of our approach to teaching, the motivation for the design of new programs and strategies, and the bar by which we measure our success. Plus, individuals or teams chosen as finalists will receive a $1,000 award.

HOW?
Go to qep.wcu.edu to find details on the selection process and judging criteria and to submit your idea. You can also send in your idea by campus mail to Amy Johnson in 560 HFR Administration Building.
