In this workshop UNC School of Government faculty member David Owens will review changes in planning legislation and how they affect local government planners and planning practice. Particular attention will be given to the implementation of statutory amendments affecting quasi-judicial decisions and board of adjustment procedures. Questions on updates to local ordinances will also be taken and resources available to local governments covered.

Who should attend: local government managers, assistant managers, planners, zoning administrators, citizen planners, and others with planning and land use responsibilities.

Registration: Please register online. A $35 registration fee covers the cost of instruction, materials and lunch.

Registration ends Thursday, October 24, or when the class reaches capacity (50 attendees). Confirmations will be sent via e-mail.

This workshop has been submitted for AICP CM credit (1.5 hours general credit, 1.5 hours law credit).

Program Sponsors:

Information: For additional information contact LGTP director Vickey Wade at vwade@wcu.edu or (828) 227-3442.

Directions: For directions to the Montreat Conference Center, visit www.montreat.org/about/travel-info-and-maps

Workshop site: Upper Anderson Auditorium, 302 Lookout Drive, Montreat, NC