NO LITERATURE REQUIREMENT Any course in P4 Humanities Perspectives Category can be used to meet the Literature Requirement in General Education Program.
LITERATURE REQUIREMENT
A literature course in General Education can be used to fulfill either the (1) Humanities area of Liberal Studies, or (2) the Perspectives area in Liberal Studies that corresponds to the area that the course fulfills in General Education, but not both. The student must choose which Liberal Studies category the Literature course will satisfy.
GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS
Students moving from General Education to Liberal Studies may take a Perspectives course at the upper level but are not required to take an upper level Perspectives Course. The rule governing the use of Liberal Studies courses for the major will apply to students transitioning from General Education to Liberal Studies, but only to courses that are taken in the Liberal Studies program part of the student's completion of the General Education/Liberal Studies General University Degree Requirement. A course taken by a student in General Education before the time of transition into Liberal Studies (by virtue of declaring or changing a major) will not be subject to this rule.
