

The Basics of Wills, Trusts and Estates

What happens when someone dies without a will? Are there different types of wills? What is a trust and why would that be an estate planning choice? What is involved in the estate administration process? Do I need a power of attorney? How can I prepare to meet with an attorney about my estate plans?

If you have asked yourself any of these questions, it's time to separate fact from fiction by attending the upcoming workshop at Western Carolina University. Lorrie Willey, faculty in Western Carolina University's College of Business will lead a workshop on "The Basics: Wills, Trusts and Estates." This workshop will give you the basics you need to start the estate planning process, to reconsider the plans you have already made and to work with an attorney to meet your end of life objectives.

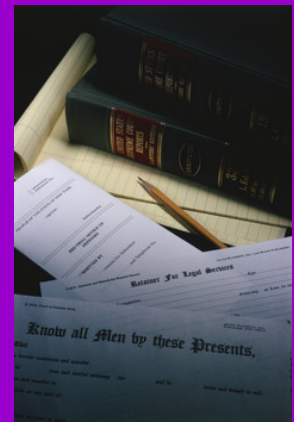

Ms. Willey received her Juris Doctor from the University of Tennessee-Knoxville and her Educational Specialist from Appalachian State University. After practicing law for many years, Lorrie now teaches business law and ethics at Western Carolina University. She will also be speaking from a more personal perspective; Lorrie is currently serving as the personal representative of her mother's estate. Her knowledge of law and enthusiasm for sharing legal information will make this a practical and helpful workshop.
