

2021-2022 Dependency Appeal Request

The Department of Education's belief that the primary responsibility for financing a student's education rests with the student and his/her family. Unless a student is classified Independent for Financial Aid purposes by Federal definition, parental income and asset information must be included in determining eligibility for Financial Aid.

Federal regulations on the FAFSA define the criteria that you must meet to be considered an independent student. If you do not meet any of those criteria, you may submit an appeal to the Financial Aid office to review your situation and determine if you are eligible to be considered an independent student. An appeal may only be approved for exceptional circumstances.

Exceptional circumstances may include, but are not limited to:

- Student a victim has been part of an abusive family environment (e.g., sexual, physical or mental abuse)
- Student has been a victim of domestic violence and no longer resides with parents
- Abandonment by parents (i.e. no contact with parents or support for at least one year)
- Incarceration or institutionalization of both parents
- Death of both parents (and death of only parent in single family household)
- Parental drug or alcohol abuse
- Other

The following conditions DO NOT merit a dependency override:

- Student demonstrates total self-sufficiency
- Parents refuse to contribute to the student's education;
- Parents are unwilling to provide information on the FAFSA
- Parents do not claim the student as a dependent for income tax purposes
- Student does not communicate with parents

 Note: Parent means your mother and/or father, or your adoptive parents. Parent does not mean foster parents, or grandparents.

If you do not meet one of the conditions listed on the FAFSA, but still feel there are extenuating circumstances, which might warrant you being considered independent of your parents, for purposes of Financial Aid, you may explain those circumstances in a petition. Completion of this form and submission of documents does not guarantee approval of a dependency appeal. Approval of an appeal does not guarantee receipt of additional aid nor does an approval at a prior institution guarantee an approval at WCU.

Please note: If you are approved for a dependency appeal, your dependency status must be reevaluated each year until you are meeting federal criteria to automatically be independent.

To begin the petition process, please answer the questions listed on the appeal form and submit all documentation together. Incomplete applications will not be reviewed.
